MR. WILLIAM T. HUDTWALKER, Principal

DEAR GRADUATES,

In my first year with you I had hoped to know all of the seniors personally. I found this was impossible and it is my loss—but I did learn to know you through the reading of your autobiographies. It was through these that I was apprised of your high hopes for the future—and in many cases of your doubts.

I did not minimize the importance of finding work for which you are well qualified and I know your concern with this phase of the future is a clear sign of growth and maturity. Individuals are gifted in many ways and happiness lies in identifying and developing these gifts. But know also that no person is without limitations and that these too must be identified—and accepted!

Accept the truth then that genius is rare, that we are all capable in some direction and limited in others. Never let preoccupation with your limitations keep you from striving to the utmost to make your contribution to society.

In our great country most of the important work is carried on by approximately ten percent of our population. These fifteen million people constitute our real "Honor Society"—the substantial people without whom no real progress would be possible. Active participation in this group is an attainable goal for all of our graduates.

Life has many facets and you have the opportunity and the obligation of adapting to them. It will be your privilege to contribute to the enrichment of community life by drawing on your rich storehouse of skills. The well balanced person is willing to accept personal limitations as well as the limitations of the world we live in. Concentrate then on your good qualities and face life with courage and poise.

In a less serious vein I look back on the many pleasant moments I shared with you. I remember now your pride in exhibiting shop projects—the Christmas assemblies at Main and Performing Arts—the concerts, plays, dance recitals—the life-boat race with the "Christian Radich," our friends on the Norwegian schoolship—and your eager faces and warm greetings while moving from class to class.

And now as you wait—expectant yet reluctant in the doorway of new ventures, pause for a moment to reflect on all that Metropolitan has given you, and on the things you most want to cherish and carry away.

I have done just that—and I will always remember you—my first class—with pride and affection!

WILLIAM T. HUDTWALKER

OUR HEARTIEST WELCOME TO OUR NEW PRINCIPAL

William T. Hudtwalker

FROM THE SENIOR CLASS

MR. NATHAN LULOFF,
Administrative Assistant

DEAR GRADUATES:

Despite the many indictments made against our young people, the experienced teacher maintains his faith in youth. Without that faith our teaching would be meaningless. It would be worthless.

We who have been with you day after day know your potentialities for doing good. We have witnessed your activities in behalf of those less privileged than yourselves. We know what enthusiasm, energy and ardor you employ in doing what is really worthwhile.

I personally have observed the kindness, the helpfulness, and the true spirit of charity with which our barber students gave haircuts to the young, disturbed patients at Bellevue Hospital. I have seen the love for mankind with which our talented Performing Arts students displayed their talents to some of the elderly, disabled residents in a home for the aged. Any adult who has had the good fortune to attend G.O. Conventions knows that there is no need for despair as far as our high school boys and girls are concerned.

Yes, our youth are basically decent. They are fine young people. The exceptions among them should not be permitted to damn them all.

Our confidence in your worth is one of the chief rewards that we earn from our teaching. Our knowledge of your strength gives us all the assurance that we need in sending you on to adult activities.

With best wishes,

Sincerely,

NATHAN LULOFF

SENIOR ALU TE E

We have gone through our high school years and have met the requirements that enable us to call ourselves seniors. Although some of us might think that, since we did the work and gained the passing grades, we should be the ones to reap the reward, we must all agree that, without the aid of our inspiring teachers, we should not have been able to overcome some of our obstacles. We must concede that, without these teachers who played such an important role in molding our personalities, we could not have learned our lessons as well as most of us have.

Our teachers and counselors guided us skilfully and patiently through our high school careers. Although they tried to make our lives as pleasant as possible, they kept, as their main aim, our future well being. This training for the future placed us in difficult situations sometimes, but we realize now that it was all part of a master plan . . . to prepare us for life's later trials.

We are all thankful that we were able to attend a school such as ours, with a faculty as capable as ours. Now we bid you, Mr. Hudtwalker and our teachers, our partners in education, a sincere goodbye.

History informs us that man has been stimulated by his creative ideas about everything that pertains to life. You, as self-reliant members of this graduating class, have given evidence of those sterling qualities that exemplify the best characters and work traits. In our unique school there is constant need for new ideas, for continual development and for realistic craftsmanship. As individuals you have tried to understand what you are doing, you have endeavored to think through classroom situations and you have hopes of making contributions to keep the theater dramatic and exciting. This apprenticeship period should fortify you with knowledge and skill that will endure with you through life. Remember that the usefulness of an individual depends often on the honest recognition of individual effort, interest and ability. In the long run, you will be judged by what you do for yourself and not by what others do for you.

Your cooperative attitude, your deep interest and your earnest determination have prepared you to compete successfully in a changing world that predicts fantastic changes for the future in all fields. My brief counseling periods with you as individuals have acquainted me with your plans, your professional attitude, your level of scholarship and your feeling about the arts. Along with your hopeful and understanding teachers, I shall treasure the happy thoughts I have gained from my conversations with you. We are confident that you will succeed in giving enthusiastic performances in all of your future activities.

Your successful achievement here should strengthen your self-confidence and faith in your ability to develop your specialized talents. We assume that you will continue to take an active part with those dynamic forces that are symbolic of lasting values in the professional arts. Your earnest efforts and helpful attitudes will give you time to hold pleasant thoughts about your advisors, your teachers and your friends at Performing Arts.

Best wishes to all of you.
